That little bit extra can make all the difference....

Project 3-1

Basement Waterproofing York

With any Basement Project the most critical aspect of the conversion is the waterproofing system. Before any other considerations it's critical that the basement is treated against dampness and water ingress. Although the basement could be fairly dry, consideration must be given to possible future water ingress. Any Damp Proofing / Waterproofing system must be installed to deal with a reasonable level of water ingress

This project consisted of the complete strip out of an existing basement. Pure Basement Systems installed a robust waterproofing system with back-up pumping equipment.

"Pure Basement Systems were reliable, friendly and knowledgeable, we would have no hesitation in recommending them to other people"
